Jason Kemp Van Ee, Social Services Program Manager:

We are seeing an increase of about 100 applications per month. Per our Union agreement, I have scheduled quarterly meetings with the Union and there were not any concerns from either party during these meetings. The Advisory Committee continues to meet quarterly. We didn't have any training opportunities here in Kings County, so we brought training here at no county cost. Through a Career Pathways Program, we worked with a non-profit from the Bay Area called HomeBridge Inc. who has a contract with CDSS to provide training and we were able to bring them to Kings County. We provide the room and they provide the trainers. They came in March of 2023 and provided training to 70 people in 4 weeks (2 weeks English and 2 weeks Spanish) and again in December of 2023 for 2 weeks in English. They will be back for another 4 weeks in May 2024 (2 weeks English and 2 weeks Spanish). They provided CPR & First Aid training, bodily mechanics/heavy transfers/mechanical lifts training, and personal care for a consumer confined to a bed training. This is only available for IHSS providers, but Valley Caregivers is another good resource to provide training to the public. 200 of 3000 providers took advantage of the incentives offered for training. The union can also send out mass texts to inform recipients of the training. Changes with Medi-Cal and baby boomers becoming of age all contribute to increased recipients.

IHSS is also available for those under 18. Beginning in February, undocumented parents will be able to hire a provider.

Wendy Osikafo, Human Services Director:

The State budget doesn't predict cuts, but increased allocation. Although, we are worried it won't be keep up with the growth rate. The Governor is proposing to close the gap.
